

take your business intentions add powerful ingredients

intention   clarity   engage   energy capacity   diversity   alignment action   potential   efficiency   strength awareness   skill   power

i m p a c t

Combining a deep understanding of neuroscience, the science of the mind, with team and individual performance tools, MorrisCoaching builds upon awareness to enable each team an experience of powerful alignment and profound results.

experience   powerful   ingredients – embody   powerful   performance!

MorrisCoaching facilitation specializes in assessing team alignment, engagement, awareness of stressors, and peak human performance - i.e. achieving a state of flow. This is done through taking a critical and current business objective and aligning it with a common thread that inspires each team member. In this process we will establish and put best practices and intentions to the test to show where old habits want to persist. This process consistently accelerates the long-term performance of teams and over-achieves on the original business goal.

With 20 years of experience in human performance and 3 years in the field of applying Neuroscience to leadership, Steve Morris brings to the table both experience and a passion for performance. References available upon request